TWENTY-ONE LIVES ARE SACRIFICED

Wreck On Wilpen Branch Of Ligonier Valley Railroad.

Ligonier, Pa., July 8.—Twenty-one lives, according to the official list, were sacrificed in the railroad crash on the Wilpen branch of the Ligonier Valley Railroad Friday night, when a passenger coach was crushed between two locomotives.

With the Latrobe and Ligonier hospitals overtaxed, nearly a score of injured are in Pittsburgh hospitals, where they were rushed in special trains last night. Of the missing that were thought to have been in the wreckage, all but two were found among the list of injured.

There could not have been a better mechanical setting for the disaster. A small engine was pushing up a heavy grade a coach crowded to overflowing with persons returning to their homes from Fourth of July celebrations in the neighborhood. In the middle of the grade a double-trailer freight train crashed into the coach. The driver of the coach engine could not reverse his locomotive in time to get out of the way, and the result was that terrific impact was exerted on each end of the frail car. Like paper it crumbled. Its occupants were caught like grain between mill stones. About the only passenger who escaped were those who were catapulted out of the human whirlpool by the force of the careening locomotives as they tore through the car.

WEATHER FOR THE WEEK.

Washington, July 7.—Following is the Weather Bureau forecast for the coming week:

Pressure distribution of the summer type continues over the Northern Hemisphere and the weather for the week will therefore be generally warm east of the Rocky Mountains and over the interior middle and Southern districts to the Westward. The highest temperatures will probably be experienced in the great central valleys and along the Eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains. There will be no well-defined storms, and precipitation will be limited to local thunderstorms or heat showers that will overspread extensive areas in any one day. In the South Atlantic and East Gulf States the showers will probably be less frequent than during the week just ended.
